

Jake's journal

Any occasion I get to tell someone what I do for a living I respond proudly with “I am a Community Banker”.

The differences between the mega banks and community banks are plentiful and it would take more than this article for me to list them all. The main difference is in the name Community Bank.

Our employees invest their time and talent by serving on local committees, coaching youth sports, speaking to students at our schools and serving as volunteer firefighters and EMT's.

When you add that to the financial support Integrity Bank Plus provides to our communities and local school districts, it is easy to see the pride we take in being a Community Bank. We know and understand the important role we play in our local economies and we take this responsibility seriously. Integrity Bank Plus will continue to work diligently to make our communities, school districts and rural economy something that we can all continue to be proud of.

Sincerely,

Jacob Jenniges
